

Open Access Policy

This is an open access journal which means that all content is freely available without charge to the user or his/her institution. Users are allowed to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of the articles, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without asking prior permission from the publisher or the author. This is in accordance with the BOAI definition of open access.

1. The Australian Journal of Law and Religion (“AJLR”) is an open access journal
2. The AJLR charges absolutely no fees to authors for submitting to or publishing their work in the journal.
3. Each published issue is available for free download immediately upon publication with no embargo period and with no registration required.
4. The AJLR publishes all work under a published under a Creative Commons copyright license, in particular a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License, which is incorporated herein by reference and is further specified at <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/legalcode> (human readable summary at <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0>).
5. Authors may deposit all versions of their work in an institutional or other repository of the author’s choice without embargo.